MARKET COMMENT (BASED ON THE SICAV REFERENCE CURRENCY)

June brought meaningful dispersion to global markets, with the broad index rising almost 2%. We saw another roller-coaster month for the US 10 Year yield, falling from 4.5% to 4.2% before settling almost unchanged by the end of the month. Oil prices bucked their recent losing trend, finishing almost 6% higher.

The dispersion saw a strange mixture of leaders and laggards at the sector level, with both cyclical and defensive sectors landing in each category. Indeed, while IT led the index higher, gaining 9%, other cyclically-aligned sectors such as Energy and Industrials dragged it lower, falling more than 1%.

North America led the major regions, supported by its IT bias. By contrast, Western Europe was a significant drag on the overall index falling more than 2%. This reflected uncertainty injected into the bloc by snap French elections announced for early July.

In June, the fund increased by 1.57%, underperforming its benchmark by 66bp. The MSCI AC World Daily TR Net USD increased by 2.23%. The fund records a positive YTD performance of 5.66%, underperforming its benchmark by 564bp.

From an industry groups point of view, both selection and allocation effects detracted from relative performance. The underweight in Semiconductors (-59bp) was particularly costly, partially offset by favorable underexposures to Capital Goods (30bp) and Materials (22bp). In terms of selection, our stock picking in Software (-19bp), Financial Services (-16bp) and Staples Retailing (-14bp) underperformed. Conversely, the choice of stocks in Technology (18bp) and Pharmaceuticals (14bp) was advantageous.

By country, the selection effect explains the underperformance, while the allocation was slightly positive. Our overweight in Taiwan (20bp) and underexposure to France (20bp) were supportive. In terms of selection, the stock picking in the United States (-152bp) was particularly detrimental, while the choice of stocks in Taiwan (26bp) and Switzerland (19bp) was fruitful.

With a positive impact of 46bp, the overweight in Hon Hai Precision Industry, a Taiwanese company operating in the Technology sector, was the top contributor to excess returns. With a negative contribution of -36bp, Nvidia (not held in the portfolio), an US corporation operating in the Semiconductors industry, was the largest detractor.
