MARKET COMMENT (BASED ON THE SICAV REFERENCE CURRENCY)

In March, emerging markets faced several impactful financial and macroeconomic events. U.S. markets saw volatility with concerns over inflation and trade tensions, following the imposition of 25% tariffs on non-U.S. automobiles. The Federal Reserve's choice to hold interest rates and update the economic outlook offered some stability, though fears of a recession persisted, driven by rising U.S. Treasury yields and consumer inflation worries. Emerging markets displayed mixed equity performance. Some key indices struggled, while certain sectors and countries showed resilience amid global uncertainties. China performed well, supported by structural reforms and positive investor sentiment, whereas Taiwan faced pressures from regional tensions and economic challenges. The Uni-Global - Defensive Emerging Markets Equities portfolio returned -0.3%, underperforming the MSCI Emerging Markets TR Net benchmark return of 0.6%, resulting in a relative underperformance of -0.9%. Sector wise, Commercial Services led with a strong outperformance of 10.3%, driven by increased demand for logistical and support services in developing regions. In contrast, the Semiconductors sector, with an underperformance of 12.6%, struggled due to supply chain disruptions and geopolitical tensions in Asian markets. Country wise, the Czech Republic excelled with a 14.4% outperformance, fueled by strong economic indicators and rising foreign investments. Conversely, Taiwan underperformed by 12%, impacted by gloomy sentiment on Semis. Style wise, our tilt towards low volatility contributed positively, offering some stability in turbulent markets. However, our exposure to Quality and Momentum contributed negatively. As regards performance attribution by Sector, the best allocation effect is our underweight in Semiconductors, while the worst allocation effect is our underweight in Materials. Our best selection effect is in Consumer Durables, while our Worst selection effect comes from our tilt towards Chinese Banks. Country wise, the best allocation effect comes from our overweight in India while the worst allocation effect is our underweight in Taiwan.
